

Use one of the pieces of paper in your home learning pack to do a large drawing of yourself. When colouring it in choose colours for your clothes which are similar to some of the colours in your garden. You can't give yourself green hair though! Then put the picture in your garden and ask members of your family to find it. How good was your camouflage?

We have seen farmers use tractors to make big messages in their fields to thank the NHS. Using objects from around the house or garden (but not a lawnmower or any other adult equipment) can you create your own message?

Using a mixture of natural and man-made materials can you make a wind chime?

Give Joe Wicks a miss today! Choose a piece of music, write down some exercises and then lead your own routine. See if you can persuade some of the members of your family to join in.

How far can you fly?
Get your family involved in making different styles of paper aeroplanes and then have a competition to see how far they can fly.
Who will be the champion?

Let everyone know how amazing they are. Make some special certificates for members of your family thinking about some of the great things they have done this week. Then why not hold your own achievement assembly?
