

A film by Steve Boot

This week we are going to be using a short film for our English lessons, both reading and writing.

This week, we will be focusing on prediction.

Directed by Steve Boot, Produced by Mackinnon and Saunders

Remind yourself.... Here is the trailer again

Task 1: Title Anagram

What is an 'anagram' ?

An 'anagram' is where the words in a sentence or the letters in a word are all muddled up in the wrong order. So the challenge is to put them back in the right order again!

For example:

birthday	to	happy	you
----------	----	-------	-----

I have un-muddled the words to make the sentence:

Happy birthday to you.

Task 1: Title Anagram

Your task is to have a go at the anagram of the title of the film.

The words to the title have all been muddled up, can you rearrange them to guess what the correct title is?

Don't look at the next slide until you are happy with your guess, then check your answer on the next slide.

upon	blue	once	moon	a
-------------	-------------	-------------	-------------	----------

What do you think the title is?

ONCE UPON
A BLUE MOON

Task 2: Write your prediction

Now you know the name of the short film, have seen the trailer, and have made some initial predictions, you can write a paragraph or two to explain what you think will happen in the film.

You will need to explain in detail your predictions about:

- The people – who is in the film? How do you know?
- The places – where is the film set? Is it set in more than one place?
Why?
- The story – What will happen in the story? What makes you think that?
- The time – When is the story set? In the future? Now? Why do you think that?

Use the 'tell me grid' you completed earlier in the week to help you. The next slide contains your check list and useful sentence guides. You can download the prediction sheet or simply write it up in your home learning books
